By NATHANIEL AMES.

WHO thinks that Fortune cannot change her mind,
Prepares a dreadful jest for all mankind;
And who stands safest, tell me? Is it he
That spreads and dwells in puff'd prosperity?
Or blest with little, whose preventing card,
In peace provides fit arms against a war?
Content with little, I can piddle here,
On turneys, beef and mutton, round the year;
I'll marry Honesty, tho' Fortune loury,
Rather than follow such a blind dull —.

MOS T heartily congratulate thee on the happy prospect of the publick affairs of this Country, so different from what it was last Fall, as nearly to exceed the most sanguine expectation; and which, however unwilling some few may be to own it, was produced by the exertion of that noble spirit of Freedom, which every thinking honest Man that has never been galled with the chain of slavery is possessed of—a spirit which GOD grant no tyrant may ever be able to extinguish amongst us: to the first excitors of which we are so superlatively indebted on so many accounts, as would far exceed the limits of my page to express. I only hope that you will always show your sense of the obligation by rewarding them and their posterity, so long as they shall hold their integrity, with all the most important posts of honour anand profit that you are capable of bestowing; and that whenever a Virginian shall visit this part of the Land of Freedom, you will be no niggard of Hospitality. Having these matters so far settled according to our wishes, let us turn our thoughts on the arts of peace.—Oh! ye husbandmen, too happy would ye be, did ye know your own advantages;
did ye turn your minds to the cultivation of ingenious arts,
that soften the manners and prevent our being brutish; did ye neglect the vain amusements and idle tattle of the town, and rather strive to know the life and manners of young prince Heraclius of Georgia, than whether neighbour Sueb-a-one married a month too late to be honest. What fine opportunities have ye to improve yourselves by study above tradesmen and mechanicks, whilst your fruits and herbage are growing? At the intervals of cultivating your fields, ye might be enriching your minds with useful knowledge—by perusing the Roman history, ye might learn how gradually a rough and ignorant people, by cultivating the study and practice of useful arts and manufactures, did emerge from obscurity to a state of grandeur and affluence inconceivable;
so great that their relicks are at this day the wonder of the world—how at last they became indolent and luxurious, and therefore vicious and ignorant, which made them a prey to tyranny; and tyranny always ends in the extinction of a nation, as is evident to those that take notice of what passes in the great world, that is, read history. Ignorance among the common people is the very basis and foundation of tyranny and oppression. With what absolute and despotic sway did that grand tyrant and impoter the Pope of Rome rule the consciences and purles of mighty sovereigns and most of the people of Europe, Britons among the rest, so long as he kept them in ignorance, making them pray in Latin like a parcel of parrots, nor suffering the common people to keep Bibles in a language they understood. — But happy for the world he is dwindling away; many nations have thrown off his saddle, and are not quite so much priest-ridden. Let us then, my countrymen, study not only religion but poli-ticks and the nature of civil government; become politician every one of us; take upon us to examine every thing, and think for ourselves; striving to prevent the execution of that detestable maxim of European policy amongst us, viz. That the common people, who are three quarters of the world, must be kept in ignorance, that they may be slaves to the other quarter who live in magnificence: and for this end I should recommend to you, first, the study of Geography, that is, the situation, extent, government, commodities, &c. of all countries upon earth. Salmon's or Gordon's Geography are as good as any that are published; and in Salmon's Gazeteer you have in few words an history of any country in alphabetical order, that you may turn to in a moment. An English dictionary will be a vast help to you. The knowledge of geography will fit you for reading history: it is proper to begin with the history of your own nation; Rapin's, Echard's or Hume's histories of England are most approved of. — Yet let not these amusements intrude upon the more important occupation of life: our bodies must be fed and clothed. But that is not all; we must do more; we must raise something to sell for exportation, if we would increase in wealth. We are not tenants but lords of the soil, and may live as gentlemen tho' not in such splendour, as lords, by increasing trade and commerce, which are as necessary to a state as wings to a bird; encouraging all kinds of tradesmen and artificers among us, diligence and industry in every one, keeping all sorts of law ful business constantly going on, every wheel in the grand system continually moving, despising foreign luxury and effemiancy, banishing from among us immorality and idleness. He that will not work, neither shall he eat.

Besides this general economy, there are many schemes that would turn out to the immediate advantage of individuals; many of which nothing but necessity, the mother of invention, must discover in time to come, when the country is ten times inhabited for all to get a living by the present methods of farming. Of how little value and trifling of late did we esteem the Ashes that we make in our houses, till some publick spirited gentlemen set on foot the scheme of making Pot-Ash, which is now become a fine staple commodity; for which Great-Britain used to send vast sums of money to Russia, Norway and other woody countries that now centers here.

But after all, our farms ought to be the chief object of our attention; for they are capable of so great and profitable improvements, that I shall not here attempt to describe them, but heartily recommend to the perusal of every farmer in the country Mr. Eliot's essays on field husbandry, as it is or may be ordered in New-England, and dare promise them it will not be a mispence of time.— Before I quit this subject, I shall briefly hint to you another way in which I think you may be of great service to the publick, by introducing a manufacture which would be as clear a saving to the country as that of Pot-ash, and interfere very little with other business, which is the raising raw silk. I will communicate to you the method as delivered to me by sundry persons and by my next neighbour, who raises considerable quantities of silk every year. In the first place, you must provide a sufficient number of mulberry-trees, which grow as fast as peach-trees, for altho' the silk worms will live on other leaves, yet they will produce silk from no other food but mulberry-leaves; having procured a parcel of silk worms' eggs you may hatch them when you please, by exposing them to the air on shelves, or rather to the warm sun-shine, you must mind and not hatch them out before the leaves have come forth in great plenty, for they eat more than one would imagine, and so greedily that you may hear them chew: they must be carefully tended every day with fresh leaves, and their shelves cleansed from filth, till they have done eating, which will be in about a fortnight from the time they begin, and then they go to spinning, which lasts about a week longer; at the end of which they must be killed in a warm oven or warm water, or they will eat thro' their silk and spoil it; but those that you intend for breeders must be suffered to eat thro' their balls and turn into butterflies, to lay eggs for the next year, which must be kept in drawers close from the air. As to the manufacture of the silk, I may possibly say something about it before your mulberry-trees are grown; and, in the mean time, am, with the profoundest respect, &c.

NAT. AMES.

THE spleeny matron on her pensive bed,
 Pain at her side, and megrim at her head;
 Two handmaids wait her nod, alike in place,
 But diff'reng far, in figure and in face.
 Here stands ill-nature, like an ancient maid,
 Her wrinkled form in black and white array'd.

'HEAR what says Rusticus, not vers'd in schools,
But strong in sense, and wise without the rules;
" Go work, hunt, exercise, but shun the glass,
" Then scorn a homely dinner if you please."
Soft are the flumbers, balmy is the rest,
The veins not boiling from the midnight feast.

Eclipses in the year 1767.

There will be two Eclipses this year, both of the Sun, and invisible to us.

The first will be the 29th January, 24 Minutes past 11 at Night, visible and total to the inhabitants of New Holland and New Guinea in the East Indies.

The second will be the 25th July, a quarter past 2 o'clock in the Afternoon. The Moon's shadow will not reach so far northward as New England.

VULGAR NOTES for the year 1767.

Dominical Letter	-	D	Epact	0
Golden Number	-	4	Number of Direction	29
Cycle of the Sun	-	12

From the 12th January Venus will be Evening Star to the 27th October; then Morning Star to the year's end.

A brief Account of the supreme executive Courts that are held in England.

The King's-Bench is next to the Parliament, the highest court in England at common law; in which are handled the pleas of the crown, all things that concern the loss of life or member of any subject, treason, breach of peace, oppression, &c. In this court are four judges: the first is called Lord Chief Justice of the King's-bench; his power is very great.

The High Court of Chancery is designed to mitigate the rigor of the other courts, and is called the Court of Equity. This court has but one judge, viz. Lord Keeper of the Great Seal; his sentence is definitive without a jury of 12 men.

The Court of Common Pleas, wherein the usual and common pleas between subjects are debated.

The Court of Exchequer. In this court are tried all causes relating to the King's treasury or revenue, &c.

An E P H E M E R I S of the P L A N E T S Places, for the 1st, 7th, 13th, 19th, and 25th Days in each Month for the Year 1767.

W. M'ALPINE hereby informs the Publick that he purchased the genuine copy of this Almanack from Dr. AMES; and hopes they will not be imposed upon by buying spurious, pirated, and incorrect editions of the same: At whose shop may be had Tate and Brady's Psalms, Watts' Psalms and Hymns, Bibles, Testaments, Prayer-books, Psalters, Spelling-books, Primers, Divinity and History-books; Paper, Pens, Ink, Ink-powder, Wax, Wafers, &c. &c. at the very lowest Prices.

PRINTING performed by said M'ALPINE in the best Manner, and at the most reasonable Rates.
